The Christmas Jumper Competition Synopsis

This poem is a lively, humorous dialogue between a group of people competing in a Christmas jumper contest.

Each person proudly describes their festive jumper, featuring things like penguins, candy canes, Santa, sequins, and Christmas trees. All while trying to outdo one another. The tone is playful and competitive, with lots of teasing and exaggerated claims about whose jumper is the best.

As the argument builds and no one can agree on a winner, a final participant suddenly appears and confidently declares themselves the winner, humorously “spoiling” the competition.

Overall, the poem captures the fun, silliness, and festive spirit of Christmas, showing how friendly rivalry and creativity brings people together.

Do you like my jumper? I think it smashing!
Well look at my baubles, they look like they're flashing!
My penguins called Humphrey, he's fluffy and sweet.
Well, my candy canes look good enough to eat.
This Christmas tree is SO realistic
Well, the colours on mine make it look mystic.

The reason we're here on this 'Christmasie' mission,
Of course, it's the Christmas Jumper competition.
Who's is the worst and who's is the best
Well, mine is better than all the rest!

Enough with this tomfoolery,
We know who's won... my Christmas tree!
This is the best Christmas jumper I've got,
I told my mum but I think she forgot!
